

Rescuing Hug

This is a picture from an article called "The Rescuing Hug". The article details the first week of life of a set of twins. Apparently, each were in their respective incubators, and one was not expected to live. A hospital nurse fought against the hospital rules and placed the babies in one incubator. When they were placed together, the healthier of the two threw an arm over her sister in an endearing embrace. The smaller baby's heart rate stabilized and her temperature rose to normal.

Let us not forget to embrace those whom we love.

You have just been hugged!

That's right, there's no getting out of it this time!

This is the start of a full-scale Hug O' War!

So hug everyone you know!

Hug your friends, your enemies, everyone!

With all the other forwards out there,

I thought this would be a good one to start.

The hug is my favorite sign of affection.

It can mean so much and many things at the same time.

It can be a sign of love, friendship, support, caring, comfort or anything.

So here you go. All I can say it will do is brighten someone's day.

I mean, we all need a hug once in a while.

So send this on if you'd like, to anyone who may need a hug,

send it back to whoever sent it to you,

Goodness knows, we could all REALLY use a hug sometimes.

Soooo . . . enjoy your hug . . and pass one on to someone else . . .

Especially, someone that really needs one! Thanks .

God Bless you, your family, & your friends!!!
